Last Week's Round-up...

The half term got off to a flying start with many families coming in to discuss progress in consultation meetings with class teachers. I hope that those who have been into school found the opportunity useful.

We have our annual Scholastic Book Fair in school. This is open throughout consultation meetings. Do pop along if you haven't done so already. The more books we sell, the more money we get to put towards new books for school.

See you in the week,
Mrs G

What's on this week

Consultation meetings continue this week for Larch, Rowan, Maple, Chestnut, Ash and Pear.

All children will come together on Monday morning for a short Remembrance service. Many classes across school have been learning about the significance of this day and making poppies to display.

As part of Anti-Bullying week, children are invited to wear their odd socks on Tuesday to remind us that we are all individual and unique. The theme for Anti-Bullying week is Choose Respect and this will be a theme that we regularly spend time thinking about throughout the year to come.

Friday is Children in Need and we invite children to come wearing yellow, spots or really, anything they feel comfortable in! We'll be joining the Gladiators in a live schools event at 09.30. There may also be a treat for the end of the day! Suggested donation is £1 but please contribute what you are able to.

Please ensure that you order school meals for each day - admin staff had to spend quite a bit of time last week ensuring that everyone had chosen an option. This takes away from other jobs they need to get done so your support is really appreciated.

A HUGE WELL DONE TO...

*Elsie Wilkin, Emmie Gattens, Everly Blair,
Joshua Taylor, Harper Willoughby, Myles
Pearse, Lucy Chatterton, Fleur Hindhaugh,
Abigail Wilson, Sophie Colgan-McKnight,
Ella Armstrong.*

We are very proud of you all!

WHAT'S NEW...

Across school, all classes are busy working on our new hall display. This year's display is a celebration of our county, Northumberland. Classes have chosen aspects of the landscape, heritage, physical features and culture to celebrate. We look forward to sharing our work with you through photos in the blog over the next few weeks and in person the next time you come into school.

HAVE A LISTEN TO THIS...

It wouldn't be Anti-Bullying week without a contribution from Andy and the Oddsocks. Important messages to share...
